His Warning From Yucatan Cross-Continent Contestant Former Senator From Monto the Deputies Regarded as a Threat.

ALMAZAN CAUSING TROUBLE IN SOUTH

Mexico City, Mexico, Sept. 18 .- Francisco 1, Madero's absolute command of the situation and the growing belief peaceful opposition at the polis are the sallest features of the political situation in the republic. With the exception of the comparatively few who have not declared openly for Reyes and for Emelto Vasquez Gomez, Madero has the politicians absolutely whipped into line. Nothing shows this more clearly than his handling of the situation which developed when the anti-Madero element decided that there was not chance at the polis and hit on the expedient of attempting to obtain a positionaction of the country was such that it would not be possible to have a peaceful casting of the accident and worked with his helpers ascertaining the amount of the damage.

The relegram of Madero to the chamber of deputies was a threat pure and simple. Even the closest friends of the fill tomorrow.

A Madero supporter and one who has figured in the limelight, Lic. Luis Cabrara, a leading lawyer and one of the country, declares in a published interview that "Madero's threatening telegram has had its effect" and then goes on to point out why the election should not be postponed.

on to point out why the election should not be postponed.

As a private citizen and a candidate for the presidency Madero had not more right to address the congress on the question than an ordinary peon laborer, although he attempted to justify his stand by declaring that he was acting as the candidate of and supported by the "great majority not to say the people almost to a man," as well as the chief of the successful revolution. Warsing the chamber against passing a bill postponing the elections, Madero said in effect, "Pass a bill to postpone the elections if you will and while I will do all in my power to influence the people to be calm, I am afraid that nothing will restrain their great wrath."

Deputies Pall in Line.

The effect was that the deputies held an shofficial meeting and decided that the elections should not be postponed and then a number who had not attended the unafficial meeting jumped aboard the band wagon declaring that the postponement of the elections would imperil the tranquility of the country. one Obstruction to Madero.

One thing, however, does promise to be a stone in the path of Madero's triumphant progress to the presidential chair and the one who promises to role a bewider down the mountainside and block the smooth highway is nothing more than a liyearold boy for all that he won the title of general during the mant revolution Juan Andrew Almazan is the name of the youth who apparently lass set out to start a revolution in the stare of Puedia, Tiaxcala, Morelos and Gourrero with the fixed purpose of producing a condition of civil war in the south and making it an impossibility to hold the electious in October.

CANNOT USE SURPLUS FOR STATE ELECTION

New Mexico Must Raise a New Fund For Election Expenses

Santa Fe, N. M., Sept. 18.— Considerable difficulty will be caused by an opinion received by territorial secretary Nathan Jaffa from Washington, D. C., that the surplus of $15,000 left from the constitutional convention cannot be used to pay the expenses of the state election in November and that every portion of the expense must be borne by the new state, including even the publishing of the governor's proclamation.

As no appropriation is available, the territorial authorities are at a loss how to pay the printing of poll and registration books, legal advertising and for other incidentals of the first state election.

FOREIGNERS JOIN IN TORREON CELEBRATION

Torreon, Coah, Mex., Sept. 18.—The independence day of Mexica was celebrated in Torreon and the surrounding towns in an enthusiastic manner and without disorders. The city of Torreon was well policed by Maderista solalers, aside from the regular police force. The federal forces now stationed here took no active part in preserving order, but remained at their barracks ready for action had any serious fromble arisen. The saloons were ordered closed on the night of the 14th and remained closed until the 18th. Consequently there was no drunkenness and no dissurbance whatever. At 11 oclock on the night of the 15th, when the proclamation of liberty was read from the balcony of the municipal building, there was a loud uproar of voices shouting for independence and many cries of "Viva Madero" were heard. Following this for almost an hour every church bell and the whistles from the factories and railroad engines kept up z constant ringing and blowing until there was not a sleeper in the whole city, CHINESE KEEP IN DOORS.

Only a few Chinamen ventured on the streets during the day, but other foreigners were in evidence everywhere, and all were treated with every consideration. The Mexican people seemed to take pleasure in showing them, even the Chinamen, every couriesy. In fact, they all seemed bent on proving the folly of the scare which had gained so much ground regarding trouble on this day.

In Address at Detroit He Discusses the Supreme Court's Trust Decisions.

CHANGED BY COURT Declares He Is Opposed to an Amendment to the

STATUTE WAS NOT

Trust Law. Detroit, Mich., Sept. 18 .- President Taft, at luncheon with the board of commerce here today, made the first of what may be termed the political speeches of his six wasks' tour of the country. He took up the "trusts" and clearly outlined his views concerning them. He defended with vigor the decisions of the United States suprema court in the Standard Oil and Tobacco-trust cases, and there was a distinct campaign note in Mr. Taft's challenge to his ancient political enemy, Wil-liam Jenaings Bryan, to point out what particular contract or restraint of trade ne would condemn which would not be consenned within the definition of the statute as laid down by chief justices White.

White.

Mr. Taft added rather significantly that persons who do not understand the decisions and really do not understand law, have had a great desi to say about them. It was not fair to the court, he declared, to say that it had read the word "reasonable" into the anti-trust sistinte.

read the word reasonable into the santi-trust statute.

Oppease Changing Trust Law.

"I am entirely opposed to an amendment to the trust law," said the president. "It is now a valuable government asset and instrument. Tested and brought into beneficial use by 10 years of litigation and construction by the highest court, why should we imperiit its usefulness by experiments?" The buttery amendments following the supreme court's decisions, the president said, had resulted in proposals propared without a real understanding of the law and he added that while the assistation might serve the purpose of promotine "unreasonable" and unreasoning discontent, it certainly ought soning discontent, it cartainly ought not to be considered seriously. Mr. Tast referred to the fact that im-mediately after the trust decisions were mediately after the trust decrease handed down by the supreme court, senator La Follette spread on the public records a quotation from one of the president's messages as being at variance with the 'rule of reason' bid

Sherman act
Supreme Court Hamelens.

"Persons who do not understand the law have a great deal to say which is intended to lead the public to the belief that in some way or other the supreme court has emasculated the statute and prevented its operation against objectionable and injurious trade combinations and conspiracies. Nothing is further from the truth.

"When the statute was passed in 1830 the exprassions used in it to define its the expression; used in it to define its object and what it was proposed therein to derounce as unlawful were not new, but they were sufficiently broad in to denounce as unlawful were now heat heey were sufficiently broad and indefinite to require judicial construction to settle their measing. Conscrees was dealing with a subject matter in respect to which it may be assumed that the legislators themselves were not clear as to the exact limitations of the meaning of the words in the statute they were passing. They knew there was an evil which they hoped to restrain by the enactment of this law, and they relied upon the courts in their construction of the law to hedge about its operation such restriction as would prevent the statute from being so wide in its application as to involve absurdity and the impracticable. The early decisions under the law cannot be said to have been fortunate. The decision in what is known as the Sugar Trust case—the Knight oase—was really a retrograde step and one which seemed to limit, the one which seemed to limit; the operation of the statute. It encouraged the organization of combinations which the same court has since found to violate the statute. The case could not be effectively presented to the court because the record had not been properly made up and the questions within work. made up and the questions arising were (Condinued on Page Four.)
